Dr. Stefan Herzog

Senior Research Scientist and Head of Research Area “Boosting Decision Making” at Center for Adaptive Rationality (ARC)
Max Planck Institute for Human Development
Lentzeallee 94, 14195 Berlin, Germany

Research statement & short bio

I study how to boost human judgment and decision making (scienceofboosting.org) by understanding human and machine behavior. I combine insights and methods from cognitive science, collective intelligence (“wisdom of crowds”), heuristics, and algorithms. I also work on applications in digital environments, medical decision making, and meteorology. Furthermore, I am co-leading an initiative on reconfiguring behavioral science for crisis knowledge management in response to COVID-19 and other, future disruptive events (scibeh.org).

I am the head of the research area “boosting decision making” (scienceofboosting.org) and senior researcher at the Center for Adaptive Rationality at the Max Planck Institute for Human Development in Berlin. In 2010 I received the Hillel Einhorn New Investigator Award of the Society for Judgment and Decision Making. My research has been covered in the popular press (e.g., Scientific American) and appears in academic and popular science books (incl. Tetlock and Garner’s “Superforecasting”). I studied psychology, management, and computer science, and received my psychology doctorate in 2009 from the University of Basel.
